Little Donald is a curious lad who wants to know how everything works. One day he asks his mother about his baby teeth, and quickly learns that although he will lose them as he grows older, they will be replaced by "grown-up teeth, just like Mommy's and Daddy's. To his mother's great pride, he also quickly learns the alphabet and how to count using his teeth, as she overhears him doing one night as he is brushing them in preparation for bed. Knowing that he has twenty teeth, he is able to apply the principles of counting and reciting the alphabet through letter T, then creatively uses the remaining letters of the alphabet to relate sound brushing rules. Then his is off to bed, for his first day of kindergarten is tomorrow!
